HARRY STIMLER ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Harry Stimler, the prominent mining man, who is said to have discovered Goldfield and after whom the town of Stimler was named, has brought suit for divorce against his wife, Queen Stimler.

The complaint, after stating that the couple were married in Tonopah, Oct. 14, 1901, declares that the plaintiff has, during much of the time subsequent to that event, been treated by his wife "in a cruel and inhuman manner."

It is further alleged that on Tuesday last at the Stimler residence the defendant threatened complainant's life, making a move at the same time as if to secure a revolver. Stimler avers that at the time he was engaged in chiding his wife in reference to undue conduct on her part.

Mrs. Stimler is accused by her husband of attending dances and other public places in the company of persons who were not acceptable to him; of remaining away from home until late and unseemly hours; of attending late suppers in company with other parties, and of going into wine rooms. The plaintiff avers that he has suffered much because of these alleged acts on his wife's part.

As issue of the marriage, the plaintiff states, there is one child, Gerald Donald Stimler, aged between 4 and 5 years. Upon this child, it is asserted, Mrs. Stimler has heaped much punishment in a cruel and excessive manner, and for that reason the complainant asks for the boy's custody. D. S. Trueman is attorney for the plaintiff.—Goldfield Chronicle.

FIVE BURIED IN CALIFORNIA MINE

QUINCY, Cal., Jan. 31.—One of the most appalling and unfortunate accidents which has transpired in this part of the State during late years happened at noon last Saturday, at the face of the Bellevue mining tunnel, situated between Gibsonville and La Porte, when six men, engaged in starting a gangway from the main drift, were caught in a cave-in and four were buried.

One of the men thus caught was Noah Cadman, who was buried to the waist in debris. His two comrades managed to extricate him and pull him away from further danger. The other men were completely shut off from escape or buried under the falling rock and dirt.

The accident caused great excitement about the mine, and immediately a force of men was put to work to rescue the imprisoned men, dead or alive. It is reported that for a

RAWHIDE LOOKING FOR A MINISTER

Dave O'Neill, one of the best known mining men in the country, who has delved in the buried ruins of Aztecs, trekked across the kopjes of Transvaal, blasted his way to the hidden treasures of the Yukon, operated some of Montana's big mines, helped to discover Ramsey and finally led the rush into the Walker Indian reservation in Nevada, is now located at Rawhide. He is general superintendent of the Murray lease, one of the richest properties in that new and booming camp, and arrived in Reno last night, confirming the stories that had preceded him.

O'Neill is recognized as one of the most conservative miners in Nevada and his word is taken by those who place their fortunes in mines.

"Rawhide is the greatest camp for its age that I have ever seen," said O'Neill last night. "It is bound to be one of the liveliest mining cities in Nevada. But what we need now is a minister. I have left my work at Rawhide to come here and make an effort to secure a minister and a church for the camp. We don't care what denomination. He can be a Latter Day Saint or a Congregationalist. What we want is a good earnest preacher, who will act as a sort of safety valve, at is were, and assist in guiding us back toward the straight and narrow path when we stray too far. I have started the list and will be at the Overland hotel all day tomorrow to receive applicants and pass upon their qualities for taking charge of the first church to be started in our coming city."

Several preachers who are numbered among the unemployed here and in Sparks, started today for Rawhide as the result of Dave O'Neill's statement this morning that the camp was without a minister and would pay one a handsome salary.—State Journal.

brief period after the accident happened, voices of some of the imprisoned men could be heard, but they soon ceased, it being evident that they were smothered.

Although their comrade miners worked diligently and incessantly for the recovery of the bodies of the unfortunate men, the progress made was very slow, due to the fact that the ground was very dangerous. It was not until Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock that the first body was recovered, that of J. E. Buckley of La Porte. This morning it was reported that the whereabouts of a second body had been determined, but it was thought that, owing to the slow progress necessarily made, it could not be recovered until tomorrow.

The bodies yet to be recovered are those of Foreman Thomas Costello of Gibsonville, and Benjamin Merian of La Porte.

SECURE CONTROL OF GIROUX CON

Binford & Hulse, of the Ely Mining Stock Exchange, are in receipt of a wire from a prominent brokerage firm in New York, which states that the Guggenheims and the brokerage firm of Hayden, Stone & Company have secured control of the Giroux Consolidated Copper Company, and will henceforth direct the management and development of the property.

For some time past it has been the general opinion of those who are in a position to know that eventually the Guggenheims would take over the Giroux property, but thought the fact that the Giroux company is operating properties in Mexico, which are on a dividend paying basis, and which have been providing the money with which to carry on the development of the mines here, would prevent the company from being affected in the present financial disturbance and keep it from appealing to stronger people for money with which to carry on the development work.

If the report be true that the Giroux people have given up the control of the company, which they have held in the family circle for the past eight years, it is also probably true that they did not do so without the receipt of some millions of dollars.—Ely Expositor.
